The people want action. That’s what I hear when I listen to folks across our nation. They want good jobs and safe streets. They want effective and competent government that works for American citizens first. They want leaders who stand for our values and who are never ashamed of our country. And they don’t want excuses.

Here in the House, we’re pulling our weight, passing a conservative Trump agenda that should give hope to the American people. We’re not done yet—not by a long shot—but this majority should build on its success, working every day with the knowledge that we do what we do for the American people.

Executive Summary

The American people want results from Washington, and the House of Representatives is delivering. In partnership with President Trump, we’re making America strong, safe, and great again. Just look at the news:

Consumer Confidence at Highest Level in 16 Years - AP

We’ve Added A Million Jobs in First 6 Months - CNN

The Unemployment Rate is at a 16-Year Low – USA Today

We know there is more to do. Our fellow Americans still fear Washington won’t be able to tackle our biggest problems. Whether their at home or around the world, Americans feel less safe and less respected. America is starting to seem less and less like a place where everyone who works hard can win, and people worry the system is working against them, not for them.

Overcoming these challenges and restoring faith in our national project requires committed leadership from Congress, starting in the House. We are the closest representatives to the American people and have the responsibility to act rapidly and in their interests.

In the first ten months of this new Congress and the Trump Administration, the House has set the tone. Our productivity is at record highs, and the bills our committees write and the House passes fulfill the vision Republicans and President Trump laid out last year. We’ve made progress with

- Regulatory reform
- Job creation and a fairer economy
- Enduring American values
- Strong national defense

I believe in constantly measuring where we are so we can practically determine how to achieve the results for all the American people who are counting on us. This report should help us see what we’ve accomplished so we can determine clearly what we must do next.
By The Numbers

The numbers don’t lie: The House is reaching record productivity. We did our best to compare apples to apples, putting side by side how the 115th Congress has done the first ten months of the Trump Administration compared to other Congresses in the first ten months of the past four presidencies. The data show that we handily outpace the average of just over 264 bills passed out of the House with a record-breaking 362.
Our committees are working on overdrive as well, passing 412 bills out of committee compared to the average of just over 304.

The House is doing everything we can to hold up our end of the bargain. Obstruction is forcing an unmatched bottleneck of 286 bills in the Senate, far exceeding the average of just over 162.
President Trump declared in his inaugural address that “we are transferring power from Washington, D.C., and giving it back to you, the people.” That power was taken away by an avalanche of rules that the people had no say over, dictated from a federal bureaucracy they don’t control.

In President Obama’s final year, the Federal Register hit 97,110 pages—longer by nearly 18,000 pages, or 15 King James Bibles, than in 2008.

Federal regulations cost the American people about $1.89 trillion every year, according to an estimate by the Competitive Enterprise Institute. That’s more than 10% of GDP, or roughly $15,000 per American household.

The Obama administration also burdened the public with nearly 583 million hours of compliance, according to the American Action Forum.

The House undertook structural reforms and specific repeals to shrink the regulatory state and return power to our fellow citizens. The results?

Republican Congress Puts Priority On Targeting Regulations – USA Today
Regulatory Repeal Through the Congressional Review Act

Right out of the gate, this conference fundamentally reformed our regulatory state. After years of Barack Obama’s executive overreach, we voted to repeal 16 regulations that were imposed by executive fiat.

1. The Stream Buffer Rule (H.J. Res. 38) would have saddled mines with unnecessary regulations, putting up to 64% of America’s coal reserves off limits and threatening between 40,000 to 70,000 mining jobs. Passed 228-194 with 4 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

2. The SEC Disclosure Rule for Resource Extraction (H.J. Res. 41) would have put an unreasonable compliance burden on publicly traded American energy companies, putting them at a disadvantage to foreign-owned businesses. Passed 235-187 with 5 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

3. The Social Security Service’s Second Amendment Restrictions (H.J. Res. 40) would increase scrutiny on up to 4.2 million law-abiding disabled Americans attempting to purchase firearms, potentially depriving people of their constitutional rights without proper due process protections. Passed 235-180 with 6 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

4. The Federal Contracts Blacklisting Rule (H.J. Res. 37) would unjustly block many businesses accused of violating labor laws from federal contracts before they’ve even had a chance to defend themselves in court. Passed 236-187 with 3 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

5. The Bureau of Land Management Venting and Flaring Rule (H.J. Res. 36) would further cap methane emissions in the oil and gas industry at a time when the industry is already dramatically reducing emissions, potentially wiping out family-owned marginal wells and costing an estimated $1 billion. Passed 221-191 with 3 Democrats, passed House.

6. The Bureau of Land Management Planning 2.0 Rule (H.J. Res. 44) would reduce local authority over large swaths of land out west, massively expanding the federal government’s control over more than 175 million acres of land—about 4,000 times the size of Washington, D.C.—in 11 western states. Passed 234-186 with 4 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

7. The Teacher Preparation Rule (H.J. Res. 58) would force states to use Washington’s standards to determine whether a teacher preparation program is effective, undermining local control over education and potentially exacerbating the shortage of special education teachers. Passed 230-181 with 5 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

8. The Education Accountability Rule (H.J. Res. 57) would be an unfunded mandate imposing Washington’s standard for how to assess schools on state and local governments. Passed 234-190 with 0 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

9. The Unemployment Insurance Drug Testing Rule (H.J. Res. 42) would severely restrict states’ ability to limit drug abusers from receiving unemployment benefits even if the drug users are not able and available for work, as the law requires. Passed 232-189 with 4 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

10. The State Retirement Plan Rule (H.J. Res. 66) would treat employees unequally by allowing states to force some workers into second-tier government-run retirement accounts that lack the same protections as private-sector accounts. Passed 231-193 with 1 Democrat, signed by President Trump.
11. The Local Retirement Plan Rule (H.J. Res. 67) would treat employees unequally by allowing certain localities to force some workers into second-tier government-run retirement accounts that lack the same protections as private-sector accounts. Passed 234-191 with 1 Democrat, signed by President Trump.

12. The National Wildlife Hunting and Fishing Rule (H.J. Res. 69) would infringe on Alaska’s right to sustainably manage fish and wildlife by overregulating hunting—a move that could set the stage for the federal government to undermine local control across the U.S. Passed 225-193 with 5 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

13. The Title X Abortion Funding Rule (H.J. Res. 43) would force states to administer Title X health funding to abortion providers, even if states want to redirect those funds to community health centers and hospitals that offer more comprehensive coverage. Passed 230-188 with 2 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

14. The OSHA Power Grab Rule (H.J. Res. 83) would overturn a rule that is clearly unlawful. The law explicitly states that employers can only be targeted for failing to keep proper health and safety records within a six-month time period. The rule we overturned would have extended that to a full five years. Passed 232-191 with 4 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

15. FCC Internet Service Provider Rule (S.J. Res. 34) would treat internet service providers (ISPs) the same as other companies like Google and Facebook by applying the same privacy rules to everyone. Passed 215-205 with 0 Democrats, signed by President Trump.

Changing the Structure of Washington’s Bureaucracy

Washington’s many agencies, bureaus, and departments propagate rules that weigh down businesses, destroy jobs, and limit American freedoms. Career bureaucrats who never face the voters wield punishing authority with little to no accountability. If there’s a swamp in Washington, this is it.

Our action strips power from the bureaucracy and gives it back to the people.

REINS Act (H.R. 26)

The REINS Act requires every new regulation that costs more than $100 million to be approved by Congress. The idea behind this bill is simple: If a regulation from a federal agency is going to have a major impact on the economy, then Congress ought to have a say. Passed House 237 – 187 with 2 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

REINS Could Save More Than $27B in Regulatory Costs and 11.5 Million Paperwork Burden Hours
- American Action Forum

Regulatory Accountability Act (H.R. 5)

This bill requires agencies to choose the least-costly option available to accomplish their goals. It also prohibits large rules from going into effect while they are being challenged in court. Further, it would end “Chevron deference,” a doctrine that stacks the legal system in favor of the bureaucracy by directing judges to defer to an agency’s interpretation of its own rules. Passed House 238 – 183 with 5 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

A Strong, Healthy America

Jobs, Health Care, Government Spending

We have a mandate to create an economy that benefits every American. New American innovations, industries, and delivery systems should be lifting all Americans up, but right now too few see the benefits of our changing economy.

Past administrations’ attempts to fix this have fallen flat. Over the years, Washington has resisted the best elements of a free and modern society and instead insisted on more government interference in our lives to little public benefit.

This command-and-control system has trapped Americans in a broken health care system and has stopped entrepreneurs and businesses from growing and creating more jobs.

The result has been a bigger government doing less for our people while more get left behind.

The House is keeping our promise for a better health care system, improved skills training, more jobs in a growing economy, support for our farmers, and reforms of a broken financial service system.

Smaller Government, Big Results:

- 1.3 Million New Jobs
- Consumer Confidence at a 16-Year High
- Small Business Optimism at a 10-Year High
Jobs

Americans understand how our country’s energy renaissance has decreased gas prices, created jobs, and reduced the influence of OPEC.

This year, President Trump reversed terrible Obama-era energy decisions and approved the Keystone and Dakota Access pipelines.

He also reasserted American leadership and pulled out of the Paris Climate Accord unless we get terms that benefit America.

While the President has been busy, in the House we voted on energy infrastructure projects that would create jobs and put us on a path to North American energy independence.

Skills

The House has acted to help men and women get the education they need in today’s workplace. Jobs data indicates employers are ready to hire, but they are having trouble finding qualified workers.

Yet the future is filled with opportunity. Sixty-five percent of today’s students will be employed in jobs that don’t exist yet.

Not only that, but over the next decade 3.4 million manufacturing jobs are expected to be created.

Unfortunately, up to 2 million may go unfilled because of a skills gap. We can’t let that happen. We need American workers to fill those American jobs.

Agriculture

Our farmers feed America and the world, and we must do everything we can to support them.

Strong farms need access to water, and though America’s farmers help put the food on the table, government mandates continue to threaten their ability to do so in the future.

To keep everyday staples affordable for hardworking Americans, we have helped farmers keep their land, water it effectively, and have access to markets without undue government burdens.

Access to Capital

Community banks are vital to community development, but Dodd-Frank has strangled these banks with red tape and needless compliance costs. Approximately 1,900 banks, including many community financial institutions, have disappeared since Dodd-Frank became law.

Whether you are opening a sandwich shop or looking to make improvements on your house, your access to capital shouldn’t be limited to just a few big banks.

Financial CHOICE Act (H.R. 10)

The Financial CHOICE Act will revive our community banks by removing burdens that prevent lending, decreasing compliance costs, and improving access to credit and capital. Growing our economy starts with investing in our communities, and for generations local banks have led the way in community investment. Passed House 233 – 186 with 0 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

Innovation

Our goal in government should never be to stop the next great American idea from turning into a successful American business. We should enable it.

One of the goals of the Innovation Initiative is to tear down government-made barriers to success and embrace the ideas that will keep America as the global leader in innovation. We have also used innovation to modernize government for better citizen services and improve security of government networks.

Modernizing Government Technologies (H.R. 2227)

We spend 80% of our $80 billion government IT budget per year on upkeep for legacy programs. This legislation updates our IT systems to move us to the modern age. Passed House by voice, awaiting Senate action.

White House-Backed Bipartisan Bill to Upgrade Aging Federal Networks
- Politico
The House fulfilled our promise to repeal Obamacare and replace it with a patient-centered health care system. The American Health Care Act (AHCA) was central to our efforts. In addition to the AHCA, the House also passed numerous other reforms to increase choice and lower premiums.

Nobody is happy with our health care system, and the status quo is unsustainable. The House will continue to build on the months of work we've already done to fix Obamacare's mess.

American Health Care Act (H.R. 1628)

The American Health Care Act would have repealed Obamacare and replaced it with a health care system that would lower premiums and give the American people more choices. Passed House 217 - 213 with 0 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

Competitive Health Insurance Reform Act (H.R. 372)

This bill eliminates anti-trust protection for insurance providers and creates competition so Americans are not left with one or two choices for health coverage, which has been a growing reality in many parts of the country. Passed House 416 - 7 with 181 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

Small Business Health Fairness Act (H.R. 1101)

This bill allows small businesses to pool together and purchase plans—increasing their purchasing power to negotiate better care and lower premiums for their workers. This is an important step toward purchasing healthcare across state lines as it allows interstate shopping for small business plans. Passed House 236 - 175 with 4 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

Protecting Access to Care Act (H.R. 1215)

This bill prevents abusive lawsuits that cause higher premiums due to the high and unnecessary cost of defensive medicine. Passed House 218 - 210 with 0 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.
In 2010 we promised the American people a change to how Washington spends hardworking taxpayers’ money. The first step to responsible government is with a budget that balances and resets our spending to national priorities—not pet projects. The second step is through an open and full appropriations process.

Passing the FY18 Budget also unlocks reconciliation for tax reform that will make America stronger in the world and improve the lives of our people.

The First Concrete Step Toward Tax Reform
- CNBC

This year, for the first time since 2004, House Republicans passed all 12 appropriations bills. These bills:

- Fully fund the Trump Administration’s request for a wall along the southern border.

- Roll back job-killing regulations, like the fiduciary rule, the Waters of the U.S. rule, and Dodd-Frank regulations.

- Protect the safety of our citizens by providing for $789.7 billion in national security priorities, including defense, nuclear weapons safety and reliability, and veterans’ affairs.
Supporting the values all Americans share starts with making sure no one is left behind. Strong families, invested public safety officials, and effective community organizations—such as our churches—provide the foundation for good, successful, fulfilling, and joyful lives.

Nothing can replace a stable and happy home, good values, and a safe neighborhood. Government can’t—and shouldn’t—do everything, but it can and should support strong individuals, families, and communities.
If you fight for us, we fight for you. That's how it works in America. Breaking our moral commitment to provide health care, basic economic security, and opportunity for our veterans is a national scandal that we cannot accept.

The House has built on the progress of previous years to root out incompetence and failures in the VA and give our veterans every chance they deserve to find a decent job and live full and healthy lives. We made a promise to our veterans, and we won't stop until we keep it in full.

Harry W. Colmery Veterans Educational Assistance Act (H.R. 3218)

This bill was the largest expansion of GI education benefits in over a decade. In particular, it allows veterans to use the GI Bill throughout their lives and establishes a pilot program for veterans to attend non-traditional technology education programs that will help them get jobs immediately after completion. Passed House 405 – 0 with 184 Democrats, signed into law by President Trump.

This legislation—also known as Micah’s Law for a young boy born at only 20-weeks—would ban abortions after 20 weeks, or when babies can feel pain. These are children who have eyes, noses, ears, and heartbeats. They are fully human, and we have an obligation to defend them and give them a chance to grow up, learn to walk, scrape their knees, go to school, fall in love, and one day even have children of their own. Combating Human Trafficking

Here in America, there were 7,572 cases of human trafficking reported in 2016. That's an increase of 35% just from the year before.

No single piece of legislation will end human trafficking and exploitation—the crime is both pervasive and hidden in plain sight. But every single one of these bills will help. And with each one, we are closer to ending this terrible wrong and giving victims the chance to live the normal lives that were stolen from them.

Strengthening Children's Safety Act (H.R. 1842)

Put Trafficking Victims First Act (H.R. 2473)

Families are at the center of every society. Strong families mean a strong country filled with happier people living more fulfilling lives. The House has acted to support American families by making much-needed updates to the foster care system. The goal of the foster care system should be to have children reunite with their biological parents, and when possible, not to separate them at all.

Resilient Communities

The devastation caused by Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, and Maria require an all-hands-on-deck approach from federal, state, and local governments. Congress has shown it is committed to providing the resources necessary to help these communities recover and rebuild. While Washington works best when it plays a supporting role to the front-line volunteers, we will keep our commitment to help people rebuild going forward.
National Security, Law and Order

A stronger, safer, and more respected United States of America requires American confidence and leadership. We are under threat on multiple fronts. Dangerous powers are rising, terrorists attack with increasing frequency, and a series of cyberattacks have revealed deep vulnerabilities.

Our past president led from behind, leaving our country less safe and our allies uncertain where we stand. For years, Americans feared we lived in a country in decline.

Last year’s election put an end to that. President Trump is leading with a strong foreign policy, and the House is making big investments in our military. By restoring America’s position of strength, our enemies will think twice before they cross us.

Peace Through Strength:

- Boosted Defense Spending by 10% to Increase Our Readiness
- Defunded Sanctuary Cities
- Increased Penalites on Crimes Against Cop
Immigration Enforcement

Our country welcomes immigrants—but immigrants must enter our country legally, follow our laws, and firmly desire to assimilate into our great American culture. Anything less is an insult to the American people.

Sanctuary cities have no right to receive federal funding. If those cities protect criminals at the expense of law-abiding Americans, they should not expect their fellow citizens to help them through the federal government.

Likewise, we need a wall on our southern border because walls don’t change with a changing administration. That’s why the House fully funded the President’s request for a border wall.

Kate’s Law (H.R.3004)

This bill increases penalties for convicted and deported criminals who reenter the United States illegally. None of us could live our lives and pursue our dreams without the men and women who ensure the public health and safety of our towns, cities, and neighborhoods.

Police officers, firefighters, public safety personnel, and first responders are everyday heroes, and the House has made sure we honor and support these men and women and their efforts, especially when they give their lives to keep us safe.

Thin Blue Line Act (H.R. 115)

This bill imposes severe penalties for the murder or attempted murder of local law enforcement officers, firefighters, and first responders. Under current law, the death penalty can only be considered in cases involving the murder of federal law enforcement officers. But this bill expands considerations for the federal death penalty to include the killing of state and local law enforcement officers and first responders. Passed House 271 - 143 with 48 Democrats, awaiting Senate action.

Resisting Aggression Abroad

Iran, Russia, and North Korea are destabilizing their regions and threatening the global order.

The Iran Nuclear deal struck by the Obama Administration would still allow them to acquire a nuclear weapon while receiving billions of dollars in sanctions relief. All the while, they continue to violate human rights, fund terrorism, and prop up the murderous regime in Syria. Russia’s continued cyber attacks and North Korea’s obsession with testing for and ultimately obtaining a nuclear weapon both require strong American leadership.

The House has taken action to push back against these bad actors.

Countering America’s Adversaries Through Sanctions Act (H.R. 3364)

National Defense Authorization (H.R. 2810)
